IRRV launches their on-line Benefits TNAs and portfolio courses at their annual Benefits Conference

The Institute of Revenues, Rating and Valuation (IRRV) is delighted to be launching their online TNAs in Housing Benefit and Council Tax Benefit and their portfolio of courses at their annual Benefits Conference at the Majestic Hotel in Harrogate (6-8 February 2007).

There are two TNAs being launched at the conference; one for beginners and another for the experienced practitioner. They have been designed to help organisations identify training needs in Housing Benefit and Council Tax Benefit and cover key administrative and legislative matters through the use of relevant, work-based scenarios. The TNAs contain multiple choice questions by subject area as well as scenarios which follow the life of fictional benefits claims.

The professional development portfolio of courses being launched includes; Coaching Skills, Conducting Performance Appraisals, Effective Communication, Managing from within the Team, Managing Relationships, Managing Workload, Negotiation Skills and Recruitment and Selection. This online portfolio of courses for local government and not for profit organisations is relevant, interactive and informative.

The programmes are supported by a sophisticated learner management system that provides access to IMMEDIATE detailed quantitative and qualitative information.

From only £8 per user licence these training programmes really are affordable to all and shouldn't be missed. For more information visit www.irrvprofessionaldevelopment.org.uk

"I am thrilled that the IRRV is in a position to offer these innovative online courses at such an affordable rate. I look forward to announcing the launch of further top quality products throughout 2007"

David Magor, Director, IRRV
